Married.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the Lutheran Church at three o'clock Thursday afternoon, November 14, 1912, when the pastor, Rev. A. Falkenberg, performing the beautiful and impressive ceremony which united Mr. Henry Leinweber and Miss Emilie Reitzer in the bonds of holy wedlock. The bride and groom were accompanied by Mr. August Leinweber and Miss Minnie Reitzer.

The groom is a prosperous young stock farmer of the upper Hondo. His bride is one of the attractive and accomplished daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Reitzer of the Tehuacana neighborhood. The young people have a host of friends who unite in extending to them all of the compliments and felicitations of the occasion.

The happy pair left on the evening train for a brief visit to San Antonio after which they will be at home on the groom's farm on the upper Hondo.

The Anvil Herald takes pleasure in wishing the young couple bon voyage on the sea of life.

Another Barn Fire.

W. H. Windrow had the misfortune to lose his barn by fire about six o'clock Thursday evening. Mr. Windrow and family were up at the store when the fire broke out and do not know how it originated. When discovered by the neighbors the fire was in the hay loft. It spread quickly to all parts of the building and a large part of its contents as well as the building was destroyed.

Heroic work of the citizens and the Hondo Volunteer Fire Co., prevented the spread of the flames to neighboring buildings and saved some of the contents of the burned one. Only from the fact that very little wind was blowing, the burned barn had a metal roof, and almost the entire citizenship turned out and worked like Trojans it would have been almost impossible to have prevented a serious conflagration.

Mr. Windrow estimates his loss at about $500 and it is partially covered by insurance.

A Paper on Serum Treatment

Read Before the Annual Meeting of the Association of Southern Agricultural Workers at Raleigh, North Carolina, November 7th, 8th and 9th, by H. H. Rothe, Instructor in Veterinary Science in the State Agricultural College of Georgia.

The use of anti-hog cholera serum as a preventative of hog cholera has passed the experimental stage. Its place in preventative medicine is now thoroughly established. While there is no doubt but that a great many improvements will yet be made in the methods of production and administration, its efficiency can no longer be questioned. The curative value of hog cholera serum should not be overlooked. In my experience in treating infected herds I find nearly 70 per cent are saved.

There are now two principal methods of administration used; namely, simultaneous and serum alone methods. The simultaneous treatment, where trained men can be obtained to do the work, is found to be the more satisfactory. This treatment consists of the injecting of serum and virus at the same time. It produces a more lasting immunity, usually for life, although some animals have been known to become infected after six months. The percentage of loss by this method is greater than the loss by the serum alone method used in non-infected herds, but when taking into consideration the fact that many owners of hogs forget, or do not even know that serum alone produces only a temporary immunity and consequently animals after a certain length of time again become susceptible, and in many cases do become infected, you will see that this results in a percentage of loss greater than the initial loss of the simultaneous treatment. The serum alone treatment when used in the herd immediately after cholera appears usually gives good results, this constituting a simultaneous treatment. The simultaneous treatment should be administered by specially trained men who know the dangers in handling virus and can from the history and diagnosis intelligently judge as to what treatment to administer. Careless handling of virus may result in permanently infecting a heretofore cholera free territory. The advantages of serum alone are the lack of danger and expense. When accompanied by a syringe and instructions for the administering of the same, serum can be sent to a farmer of ordinary intelligence with good results, but he must be informed as to the length of temporary immunity produced by this method, so that he can have his herds re-inoculated after the immunity runs out.

A double method is sometimes used, which consists of first giving the animal serum alone, followed a week later with the simultaneous treatment. This method gives very good results, but a greater expense is attached and more time is necessary than for the immediate simultaneous treatment.

Treating with serum alone and then exposing the treated animals to hog cholera is also practiced. This, however, is in most cases a compulsory matter, as so many owners of hogs wait until the herd is infected before they use the serum. The utmost precaution must be taken in either method to prevent secondary conditions, such as abscesses, tumors, septicæmia and pyæmia. Here the value of the trained man manifests itself. The virus used in the case of the simultaneous treatment should be somewhat attenuated, but in sufficient strength to produce a cellular reaction resulting in the production of the so-called antibodies. These anti-bodies, which are perhaps a chemical compound, have a great affinity for the virus producing hog cholera. When these two substances come in contact with each other the chemical known as virus is taken into or absorbed by the chemical known as anti-bodies, constituting a chemical combination. It is proba-should have rich, red blood and sturdy, healthy bodies to withstand cold rains, changing seasons and winter storms.

If your child is weary when rising—lacks energy and ambition—has no appetite or possibly sallow skin or a pinched face—it is for want of vital body-nourishment; this growing period demands special, concentrated, easily digested food for body-development—mental strain—physical changes.

Scott's Emulsion is the greatest body-builder known—it is nature's wholesome strength-maker—without alcohol or stimulant—makes rosy cheeks, active blood, sturdy frames and sound bodies.

But you must have SCOTT'S.

SCOTT & BOWNE, Bloomfield, N. J. 12-42

ble that the anti-bodies have attached specific receptors which allow for this union to take place. Anti-bodies remain suspended in the blood and other body fluids as long as the tissue reaction against the virus continues. This reaction slowly becomes less until it finally ceases. At this point the intensity of the immunity also becomes less. Undoubtedly after a certain length of time these anti-bodies disintegrate, which results after a time in a total absence of immunity. However, we can safely say that immunity from the simultaneous treatment lasts from six months to a lifetime. That of the serum alone lasts from several weeks to three months.

The ordinary method is to vaccinate on the inside and fleshy portion of the ham. This allows for a more rapid and complete absorption of both virus and serum, which causes a more virulent reaction. However, there are some objections to this method, because this location is easily infected, causing abscesses or tumors which are very objectionable to the packers. It sometimes ruins a considerable portion of the most valuable part of the hog. Some operators vaccinate immediately under the skin under the jaw or flank. Sows heavy in pig are sometimes vaccinated just back of the ear. These two last methods have the disadvantage of its taking longer to absorb the serum, but it is less likely to cause serious infection. The seat of operation should be thoroughly cleansed, if possible, the first with soap and water, then with a strong disinfectant, such as 3 per cent solution of phenol or alcohol.

In view of the fact that the body resistance of the animal is somewhat lowered by the treatment and lays them susceptible to other conditions, such as pneumonia, an after treatment would suggest itself. A spare diet for three or four days, very little corn, but plenty of water; thoroughly clean and comfortable pens; an abundance of clean bedding, with absolutely no chance to get into mud or draft of any kind. The more mud and dust the more danger. Hogs should not be dipped or operated on for several weeks after being vaccinated. Hogs should not be treated when they are untimely or have some other disease, if they are badly infected with worms, or are mangy, if the pens and yards are not in a sanitary condition, if they cannot be given proper shelter, feed and care,—in fact, if it cannot be done under proper conditions it is best not to vaccinate at all, as the results are frequently far from satisfactory.

In Loving Remembrance of Little Wesley Bilhartz.

Left us! yes, forever more. But we hope to meet our loved one On that bright and happy shore. Lonely the house and sad the hours Since our dear one has gone, But ah! a brighter home than ours, In heaven is now his own.

A precious one from us has gone The voice we loved is stilled A place is vacant in our home Which never can be filled.

God in his wisdom has recalled The boon his love had given, And though the body slumbers here The soul is safe in heaven.

Dearest Wesley, thou has left us, And our loss we deeply feel; But tis God that has bereft us, He can all our sorrows heal.

Yet again we hope to meet thee When the day of life is fled When in Heaven in joy to greet thee Where no farewell tears are shed.

I. G. Mahan, 1221 12th St., Fort Smith, Ark., says: "I cannot say too much in favor of Foley Kidney Pills. I had kidney trouble with a pain in my back that hurt so sometimes I had to go sit down. When I started taking Foley Kidney Pills I was bent over. But now I can work every day, the pain is gone and I feel fine." W. H. Windrow.

With the majority of people, nothing appears to be more difficult than to answer a question with "yes" or "no."

PRESCRIPTION

For a Long Life.

This is the prescription for a long life given by an old gentleman in Connecticut, who is ninety-nine years old and still well and cheerful, "Live temperately, be slow to anger, don't worry, take plenty of exercise in the fresh air, and, above all, keep cheerful."

Should the system get run down—digestive organs weak—the blood thin and sluggish, take Vinol, which is a delicious combination of the medicine—body-building properties of cods' livers, with the useless grease eliminated and tonic iron added. We regard Vinol as one of the greatest body-builders and strength-creators in the world for aged people.

Mrs. Mary Ivey, of Columbus, Ga., says: "If people only knew the good Vinol does old people, you would be unable to supply the demand; it is the finest tonic and strength-creator I ever used."

We wish every feeble old person in this vicinity would try Vinol on our agreement to return their money if it fails to give satisfaction.

SUNNY BROOK

The great tonic and stimulating properties of Sunny Brook have had much to do toward making us the largest distillers of fine old whiskey in the world. For nearly 50 years Sunny Brook has proved of real value to those who now and then require an energizer. When energy is lacking efficiency is lacking. Rare, old and mellow whiskey like Sunny Brook, acts as a great up-builder; and makes life worth living.

Sunny Brook is Bottled in Bond—every bottle is sealed with the Government Stamp showing that the contents are genuine, straight natural whiskey, U. S. Standard (100%) proof. This stamp however, only assures purity, but not quality. Any whiskey Bottled in Bond is genuine straight whiskey, but not all straight whiskeys are good whiskeys. When you select Sunny Brook—The Pure Food Whiskey—then you know that in addition to the assurance of Absolute Purity by the greatest government on the globe you have a guarantee of Unexcelled Quality by the largest distillers of fine whiskey in the world.

Ballard's SNOW LINIMENT

Is the Right Remedy for All Abrasions of the Flesh.

If the wound is cleansed and the liniment applied promptly, the healing process begins at once and the wound heals from the inside outwardly, thus performing a perfect cure that leaves no scar. If the wound heals on the outside too quickly, pus forms under the surface and breaks out into a running sore that is hard to cure and inevitably leaves a bad scar.

Owners of blooded stock prefer this liniment to all others for this reason, and they use it not only on fine animals, but on human flesh, as it does its work quickly and thoroughly.

Declare War on Colds.

A crusade of education which aims "that common colds may become uncommon within the next generation" has been begun by prominent New York physicians. Here is a list of the "don'ts" which the doctors say will prevent the annual visitation of the cold:

"Don't sit in a draughty car."
"Don't sleep in hot rooms."
"Don't avoid the fresh air."
"Don't stuff yourself at meal time. Over-eating reduces your resistance."
To which we would add—when you take a cold get rid of it as quickly as possible. To accomplish that you will find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy most excellent. Sold by W. H. Windrow.

You can truthfully say of onions and mint drops that they are not to be mentioned in the same breath.

A Night of Terror.

Few nights are more terrible than that of a mother looking on her child choking and gasping for breath during an attack of croup, and nothing in the house to relieve it. Many mothers have passed nights of terror in this situation. A little forethought will enable you to avoid all this. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a certain cure for croup and has never been known to fail. Keep it at hand. For Sale by W. H. Windrow.

Father Heckman performing the last sad rites. Deceased was born at Wittelsheim, Alsace, Germany, Nov. 17, 1848, and came to this Country during the year 1863. During the year 1868, she was happily married to Mr. Aug. Mangold Sr. which union was blessed with ten children, seven sons and three daughters, of which one son and two daughters preceded their mother in death. Besides her grief-stricken husband and motherless children the departed leaves fifteen grandchildren, three brothers, one sister and a large number of other near and dear relatives to mourn her untimely demise. A large cortege of mourning relatives and friends followed the remains to their last resting place. We join in sympathy with the bereaved ones.

Not Fit For Ladies

Public sentiment should be against it, and we believe it is, there is no reason why ladies should have to suffer with headache and neuralgia, especially when Hunt's Lightning Oil gives such prompt relief. It is simply a question of getting the ladies to try it. All druggists sell Hunt's Lightning oil in 25c and 50c bottles.

WHEN you see a man with trace
 Of thought or sadness on his face
 Rush up and take his arm
 with knuck
 And slap him fondly on the back.
 And if he's sad and friendless, too,
 He'll give his open hand to you

But if the gentleman you caught
 Was just absorbed in deepest thought
 And trying hard to twist his brain
 That some success he might attain
 And you, then, all his thought undo
 He'll slip his folded hand to you.

THE 1912 crops are practically all harvested. An abundance of feed is in the country and while the cotton crop was somewhat short the fair price received for the same has practically put the country out of debt. A nice out crop has been planted and with a rain soon to put it in shape for winter pasture the country will face the brightest outlook for 1913 that it has had in a number of years.

AN examination of our subscription list shows that there is about three hundred dollars past due us on subscription. If this were all paid us at once it would put us on easy street for the time being. If you happen to be of the number who have allowed your subscription to get behind and received a statement from us to that effect don't take it that we mean by it that you are dishonest and don't mean to pay us. Just remember that it takes lots of money in these times of high prices to live and run a paper like the Anvil Herald, and consider that our statement to you is a respectful reminder that we need the money and have confidence in you that you will come forward at once and help us by paying the small amount you owe. If all to whom statements have been sent, and as many others as can, will pay up at once ours will be indeed a happy Thanksgiving Day. Won't you do your part?

No man who has ever tasted defeat in the smallest way—and who has not some time in life?—
 can fail to sympathize with President Taft in what must be his deep humiliation at failing to be re-elected to a second term. It must be doubly galling to him when he reflects also that the hand that made him has likewise destroyed him. While sympathizing only with Taft as a man and not with his policies, and rejoicing that the triumph of Democracy means new policies and we hope a happier era for our country as a whole, we can not suppress a feeling of contempt for the man whose overweening ambition has made the change possible. When Theodore Roosevelt reflects how he dodged the tariff issue while in the White House and then sought to turn the unpopularity of his own protege—who had the courage to face the problem and incur the enmity of those he hurt by it—into personal advantage for himself, deep down in his own heart he must feel a like contempt. At best, the fruits of political fortune are but dead sea-apples, destined to turn to ashes upon the lips, and happiest is he who is not tempted by them.

Our loved one has gone

To the world above;

His soul has flown

To the God we love.

Among us he lived

Throughout his life

God's blessings received

Till his time was ripe.

His stay on earth

To us seemed short

Yet from our loved ones

We all must part.

God called Wesley to him,

He who does understand

The perplexities of life

In all this land.

O, how we did cherish

Him, our loved one,

And for him do mourn;

Yet, God's will be done.

Therefore, grieve not, parents, sisters

And brothers;

Think of that home far above,

When you will be with your darling

Hon. Emmett O'Neal.

Among the governors of states, Gov. Simeon E. Baldwin, of Connecticut; Gov. Emmett O'Neal, of Alabama; Gov. Plaistead, of Maine, and Gov. Colquitt, of Texas, have gone on record as unalterably opposed to prohibition.

"I am not a believer in crowding total abstinence down everybody's throat," says Gov. Baldwin. "Prohibition, in my view, should be a matter of local option. I have always voted for license in New Haven."

Gov. Emmett O'Neal, of Alabama, was elected on a local option issue and as a result of his activity against the passage of a statewide prohibitory law. Gov. O'Neal's initial message to the legislature denounced prohibition, which the people had refused to incorporate into their constitution, and

secured from the legislature a new enactment permitting any county to vote the saloon or dispensary in or out.

Gov. Plaistead, of Maine, leads the resubmissionists of his state. After fifty years trial of prohibitory laws the people of Maine this year elected a "wet" legislature which, under Gov. Plaistead's urging, in all probability, will again submit the question of prohibition to the voters.

Gov. Colquitt, of Texas, has been fighting desperately on the stump for the defeat of the prohibitory amendment to the constitution of his state. He has suffered at the hands of the prohibitionists for his determined stand against statewide prohibition and was requested to resign from the Methodist church because of his views on prohibition.

METHODIST MINISTERS HURL EPITHETS AT GOVERNOR.

Galveston, Tex.—An example of the intemperance shown in speech by some of the advocates of statewide prohibition in Texas is illustrated by the attacks made at the recent Methodist church conference in Marlin. Gov. Colquitt and Senator Joe Bailey of Texas were ranked by ministers with "toughs, liquor trust saloon men, disorderly house keepers and professional politicians." These epithets were embodied in resolutions which were adopted by the conference.

Under the regulated control of saloons in Baltimore, Md., seven hundred and fifty disreputable saloons have been wiped out in four years, and the city's revenue from those that remain has been increased to more than a million dollars a year.

Going Into Society

"There's one thing we're going to start this fall," spoke up Trimmer to Mrs. Trimmer after the evening meal had been consumed, "and that is we're going to go out more. 'This thing of sitting around home all the time can be overdone."

"From now on," he added, "we're going around among people and to the theater occasionally. We've been sticking around here evenings, getting old before our time. It's up to us to ginger up a bit and get out to see our friends more or we won't have any friends. It makes people all go to seed to stay in their shell week in and week out. From now on we're going to operate on a different system."

"I've often thought the same thing," agreed Mrs. Trimmer, "but I supposed that you preferred being at home in the evening. Lots of times I've wanted to go out, but didn't like to suggest it when you seemed so comfortable at home and so interested in your papers."

"Well, there's evidently been some misunderstanding," said Trimmer, agreeably, "for I don't like anything better than to have an evening of social diversion now and then. It's just what I need. Man's a social being, and if he doesn't enjoy the society of other people occasionally, outside of business hours, there's something more or less abnormal about him, that's all."

"We'd better take in the Bronsons' musicale, then," suggested Mrs. Trimmer. "It's a week from tomorrow night and we're sure to be invited. Mrs. Bronson was saying something about it the other day."

"All right," said Trimmer, "but I was just about to say that I had tickets for the theater tomorrow night. So don't make any other plans."

Trimmer remarked that he'd had a rather strenuous day when he got home the next evening. After supper he lay down on the lounge.

"We'd better be getting ready if we want to be at the theater on time," suggested Mrs. Trimmer shortly after seven o'clock.

"Huh!" grunted Trimmer with a yawn. "This is the night we were going to the show, isn't it? Well, get your things on and I'll be ready when you are."

Mrs. Trimmer hastened to obey.

"Somebody was telling me," remarked Trimmer as they were leaving the house, "that the show isn't much good, after all. I'm not as keen about it as I was." Then they went on and waited for the car.

After dinner, one week later, Trimmer put on his slippers, got into an old lounge coat and leaned back in the big Morris chair with a satisfied expression while he looked over the paper. A few minutes later he went over and got a couple of his pipes, off the center table and started to clean them up.

"This always used to be my favorite smoke—this pipe right here," he confided to Mrs. Trimmer, "but it's got so caked up lately I'll scarce draw at all. Now's a good time to clean it up. Then, after I get it into shape I've got a magazine with a couple of cracking good stories that I want to read to you."

"You'll scarcely have time to do all that, will you?" inquired Mrs. Trimmer smiling. "You know this is the night of the Bronsons' musicale. It's about time that you put on your dress suit. I've got everything laid out for you."

"What's that?" Trimmer looked up, startled. "Musical, you say? Haven't you been a little previous in accepting invitations to such things without consulting me? You know very well how I stand on trotting around in the evening in a dress suit. When I get through work at the office I want to come home and rest. Rest, mind you. That's what I want to do. And it isn't much rest for me to go chasing about with a lot of pinheads that imagine they're deriving enjoyment out of that kind of so-called classical stuff they play at these musicale things."

"Where'd you get the idea that I was willing to be dragged out to such an affair as that, anyway? I'd have to talk to a lot of light weights that don't know enough to carry nuts to a squirrel. I never saw one of those society people who could pass an entrance examination to a night school."

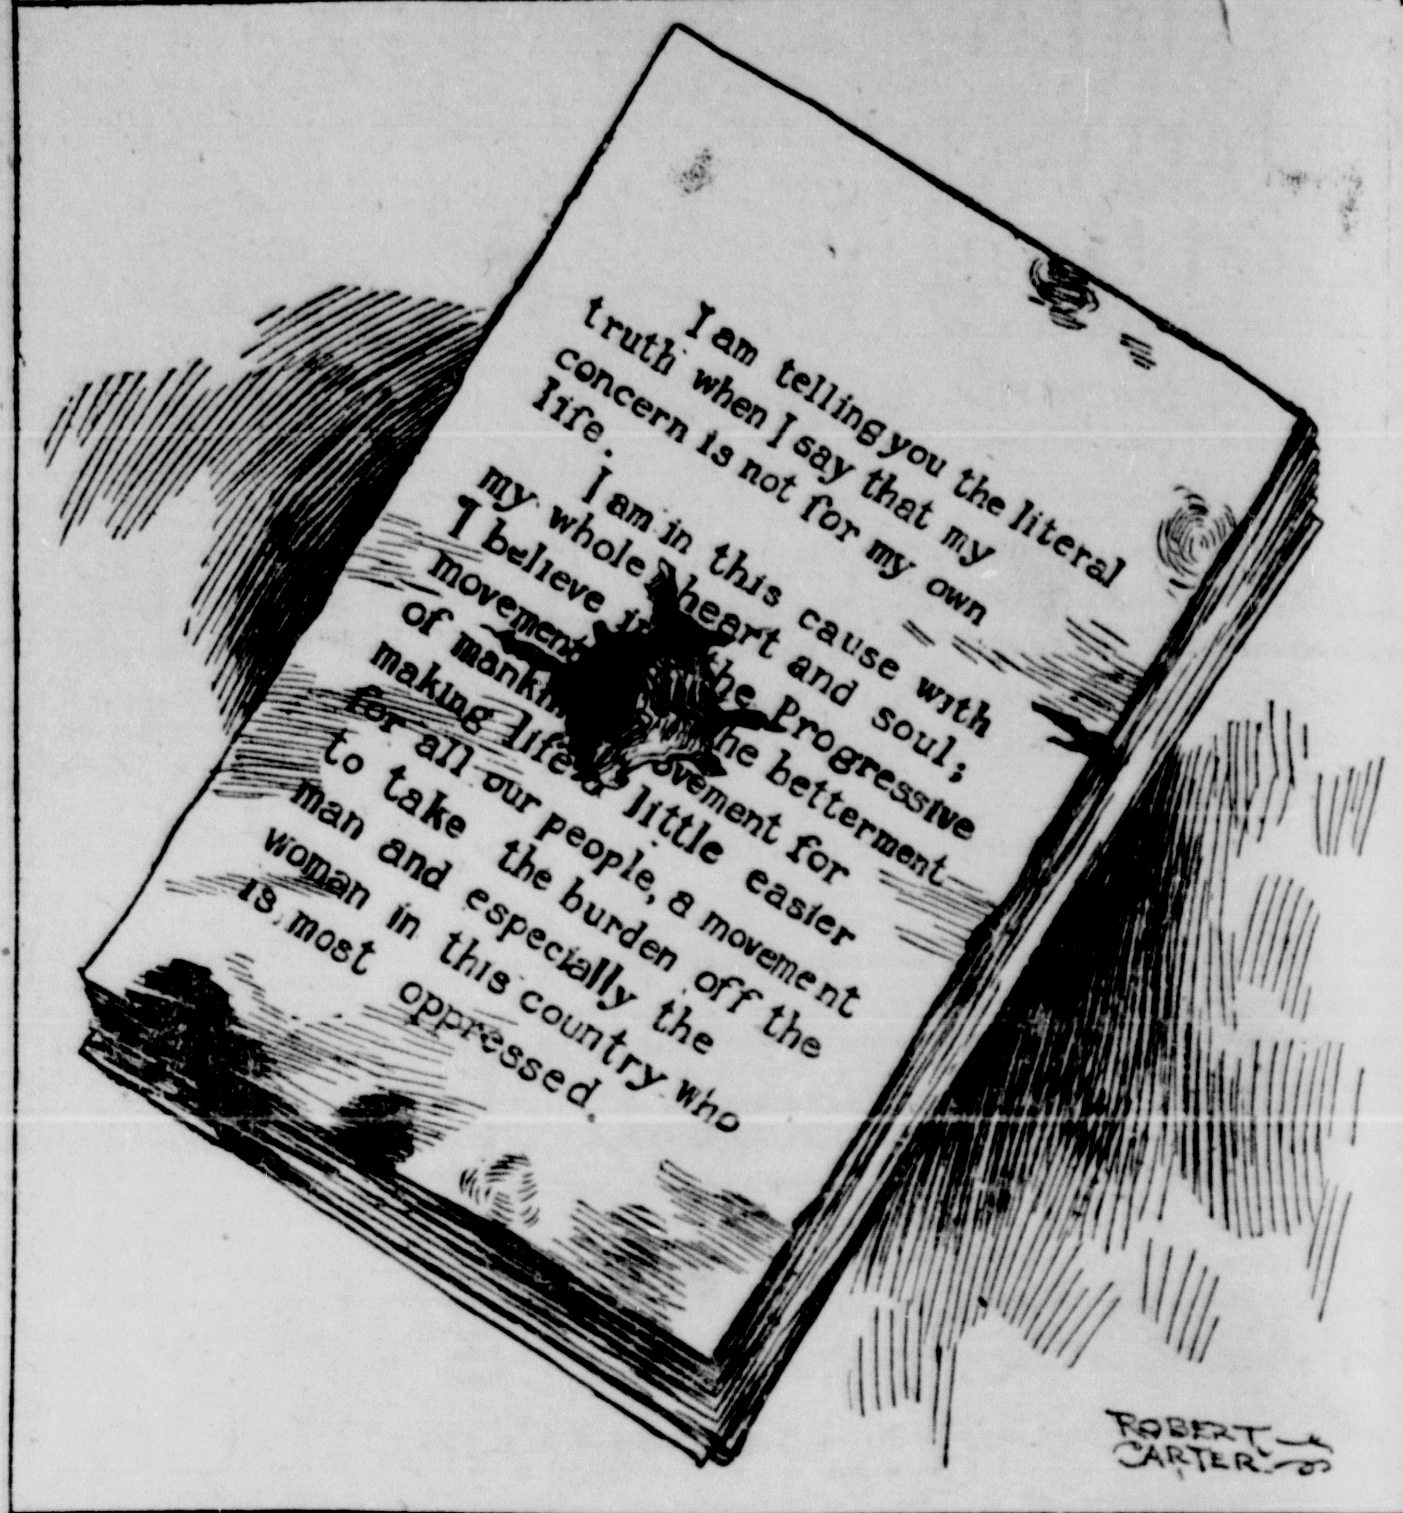

"What? I said we ought to go out more? Did, eh? Oh, yes, and I suppose I had just such an affair as this musicale in mind, too. That sounds about like me. Yes! Nice spirit on your part to take advantage of a chance remark of mine that I was willing to go out in the evening with you once in awhile—if I did say such a thing."

"Oh, well, I suppose I'm up against it now. We'll have to go to the infernal thing. But it does seem a pity that a man can't have an evening of quiet and rest now and then."

A MESSAGE

Extract from Colonel Roosevelt's Speech delivered immediately after he was shot.

THE CAUSE NOT THE MAN

What Col. Roosevelt Said to His Milwaukee Audience.

NO CONCERN FOR HIS OWN LIFE

In the Greatest Campaign Speech on Record, With a Bullet in His Body, He Answered Forever the Argument That the Progressive Party is a One-Man Movement.

The speech that Col. Roosevelt delivered at Milwaukee with a bullet in his body was the most dramatic campaign utterance on record.

Just before he rose to speak Henry F. Cochems, head of the Progressive Party's Speakers' bureau and a Milwaukee man, came forward and said: "In presenting Col. Roosevelt to you, good citizens, good fathers and good civilians, you should know that the Colonel comes to you in the spirit of a good soldier."

"As we were leaving the hotel a few moments ago a dastardly hand raised a revolver and fired a shot at him, and the Colonel speaks as a soldier with a bullet in his breast; where, we don't know."

A shudder ran through the audience, accompanied by cries of "Oh, Oh," from the women present, who made up half of the audience.

Col. Roosevelt stepped forward and was greeted with a cheer that shook the building. He had the old grin on his face, and it was hard for the audience to credit the statement that he stood there like a soldier with the lead of an enemy in his body.

That there was no question of this was shown by a little incident. When the Colonel started to read his notes he took his spectacle case from the vest pocket, and turning to those just about him, exhibited it, indicating where the bullet of the assassin had nicked it. This brought another sympathetic cheer, to which Mr. Roosevelt responded with one of his smiles and began his talk.

"Friends, I shall ask you to be as quiet as possible," he said. "I don't know whether you fully understand that I have just been shot, but it takes more than that to kill a Bull Moose. (Cheers.) But fortunately I had my manuscript, so you see I was going to make a long speech (holds up manuscript with bullet hole) and there is a bullet—there is where the bullet went through and it probably saved me from it going into my heart. The bullet is in me now, so that I cannot make a very long speech, but I will try my best. (Cheers.)"

"And now, friends, I want to take advantage of this incident and say a word of solemn warning as I know how to my fellow countrymen. First of all I want to say this about myself: I have altogether too important things to think of to feel any concern over my own death, and now I cannot speak to you insincerely within five minutes of being shot."

"I am telling you the literal truth when I say that my concern is for many other things. It is not in the least for my own life. I want you to understand that I am ahead of the game anyway. (Applause and cheers.) No man has had a happier life than I have led; happier life in every way. I have been able to do certain things that I greatly wished to do and I am interested in doing other things."

"I can tell you with absolute truthfulness that I am very much uninterested in whether I am shot or not. It was just as when I was colonel of my regiment. I always felt that a private was to be excused for feeling at times some pangs of anxiety about his personal safety, but I cannot understand a man fit to be a Colonel who can pay any heed to his personal safety when he is occupied, as he ought to be occupied, with the absorbing desire to do his duty. (Applause and cheers.)"

"I am in this cause with my whole heart and soul. I believe that the Progressive movement is for making life a little easier for all our people; a movement to try to take the burdens off the men and especially the women and children of this country. I am absorbed in the success of that movement."

"I regard this incident as of infinitesimal importance as compared with the great issues at stake in this campaign, and I ask it not for my sake—not the least in the world, but for the sake of our common country that our opponents make up their mind to speak only the truth, and not to use the kind of slander and mendacity which, if taken seriously, must incite weak and violent natures to crimes of violence."

THE LEADER AND THE CAUSE

Put Into Concrete Form Deep-Rooted Aspirations of Millions of Americans.

A PROOF OF CONSECRRATION

Roosevelt Has Made Progressives, but He Did Not Make Progressivism—He Crystallized the Longings of Men but the Party Principles Were Born Long Ago in the Hearts of the Nation.

Roosevelt the ambitious egotist, the would-be Caesar—that monstrous figure of caricature drawn by enmity and malice has been destroyed, never to reappear. But we fancy the other thought—that this is a "one-man movement"—still persists, and it is upon this point that we purpose to speak with somewhat personal emphasis.

With the narrow escape from the tragedy fresh in mind, we say that Colonel Roosevelt was not the creator of the Progressive movement, that he is not the guarantor of its permanency nor his life necessary to its ultimate success.

The Progressive cause and the Progressive party are at this time millions of votes stronger because, responding to the call of duty, he sacrificed ease and braved misinterpretation to become their leader. The establishment of social and industrial justice in this country is, we believe, nearer by a quarter of a century because of the work unselfishly done by this great man.

But he did not create the cause. He has made Progressives, but he did not make Progressivism. He is, it has been said, the "political parent" of Folk and Hadley and Johnson and Wilson and others who have won prominence in the faith. But he did not implant in the breasts of men the aspirations for freedom and justice which the cause embodies.

The principles which now are set forth for the first time by a great political party as a "contract with the people" have long been the growing beliefs of millions of citizens. Roosevelt during his presidency began to interpret them and to put into concrete form and phrase these aspirations and convictions.

Like all effective leaders of historic movements, he crystallized and gave visible substance to the deep-rooted longings of men. He voiced what millions felt. But the cause was born in the heart of this nation, and there lies its strength. Even though that bullet had not been providentially deflected that marvelous fraction of an inch and he had fallen a martyr, the cause would still have gone on, because it is in harmony with the irresistible forces of human growth and evolution.

Had Grant died in the field, would that have meant the permanent disruption of the Union? His loss would have cost battles, but it could not have prevented the ultimate triumph of his cause. So if the Progressive leader had fallen, there would have been profound sorrow for the passing of a loyal friend and leader, but no feeling of hopelessness.

If this seems a cold and calculating view let us say that we believe it is the view Theodore Roosevelt would have his followers take. We believe that had he lost his life the epitaph he would wish to be written of him would be that he had served well, but that, as he himself said in the face of death, the cause would go on without him.

This was what moved him to that supreme proof of devotion last Monday night. This has been his spirit since the beginning. He showed it when, confronting the formidable nomination of Governor Wilson, he decided to make the fight. He said he felt like a soldier under orders: if he was summoned even to lead a forlorn hope, he must obey.

And this, we believe, is the view of the great body of Progressives. They look upon Roosevelt as an unequalled figure of brave and sagacious leadership; they are profoundly grateful for the strength that he gives to the movement, and they rejoice that he is spared to head the march to victory. But they know the cause would not have died with him, because it is founded on the eternal principles of justice, because it is the cause of humanity.

Flagged Train With Shirt.

Tearing his shirt from his back an Ohio man flagged a train and saved it from a wreck, but H. T. Alston, Raleigh, N. C., once prevented a wreck with Electric Bitters. "I was in a terrible plight when I began to use them," he writes, "my stomach, head, back and kidneys were all badly affected and my liver was in bad condition, but four bottles of Electric Bitters made me feel like a new man." A trial will convince you of their matchless merit for any stomach, liver or kidney trouble. Price 50 cents at W. H. Windrow's.

In Memory of Little Wesley

William Bihartz.

Our loved one has gone
To the world above;
His soul has flown
To the God we love.

Among us he lived
Throughout his life
God's blessings received
Till his time was ripe.

His stay on earth
To us seemed short
Yet from our loved ones
We all must part.

God called Wesley to him,
He who does understand
The perplexities of life
In all this land.

O, how we did cherish
Him, our loved one,
And for him do mourn;
Yet, God's will be done.

Therefore, grieve not, parents, sisters and brothers;
Think of that home far above,
Warm you will be with your darling
Wesley.

All in union and in love.

Hon. Emmett O'Neal.

Among the governors of states, Gov. Simon E. Baldwin, of Connecticut; Gov. Emmett O'Neal, of Alabama; Gov. Plaistead, of Maine, and Gov. Colquitt, of Texas, have gone on record as unalterably opposed to prohibition. "I am not a believer in crowding total abstinence down everybody's throat," says Gov. Baldwin. "Prohibition, in my view, should be a matter of local option. I have always voted for license in New Haven."

Gov. Emmett O'Neal, of Alabama, was elected on a local option issue and as a result of his activity against the passage of a statewide prohibitory law. Gov. O'Neal's initial message to the legislature denounced prohibition, which the people had refused to incorporate into their constitution, and

secured from the legislature a new enactment permitting any county to vote the saloon or dispensary in or out.

Gov. Plaistead, of Maine, leads the resubmissionists of his state. After fifty years trial of prohibitory laws the people of Maine this year elected a "wet" legislature which, under Gov. Plaistead's urging, in all probability, will again submit the question of prohibition to the voters.

Gov. Colquitt, of Texas, has been fighting desperately on the stump for the defeat of the prohibitory amendment to the constitution of his state. He has suffered at the hands of the prohibitionists for his determined stand against statewide prohibition and was requested to resign from the Methodist church because of his views on prohibition.

METHODIST MINISTERS HURL EPIPHETS AT GOVERNOR.

Galveston, Tex.—An example of the intemperance shown in speech by some of the advocates of statewide prohibition in Texas is illustrated by the attacks made at the recent Methodist church conference in Marlin. Gov. Colquitt and Senator Joe Bailey of Texas were ranked by ministers with "toughs, liquor trust saloon men, disorderly house keepers and professional politicians." These epithets were embodied in resolutions which were adopted by the conference.

Under the regulated control of saloons in Baltimore, Md., seven hundred and fifty disreputable saloons have been wiped out in four years, and the city's revenue from those that remain has been increased to more than a million dollars a year.

Going Into Society

"There's one thing we're going to start this fall," spoke up Trimmer to Mrs. Trimmer after the evening meal had been consumed, "and that is we're going to go out more. 'This thing of sitting around home all the time can be overdone."

"From now on," he added, "we're going around among people and to the theater occasionally. We've been sticking around here evenings, getting old before our time. It's up to us to ginger up a bit and get out to see our friends more or we won't have any friends. It makes people all go to seed to stay in their shell week in and week out. From now on we're going to operate on a different system."

"I've often thought the same thing," agreed Mrs. Trimmer, "but I supposed that you preferred being at home in the evening. Lots of times I've wanted to go out, but didn't like to suggest it when you seemed so comfortable at home and so interested in your papers."

"Well, there's evidently been some misunderstanding," said Trimmer, agreeably, "for I don't like anything better than to have an evening of social diversion now and then. It's just what I need. Man's a social being, and if he doesn't enjoy the society of other people occasionally, outside of business hours, there's something more or less abnormal about him, that's all."

"We'd better take in the Bronsons' musicale, then," suggested Mrs. Trimmer. "It's a week from tomorrow night and we're sure to be invited. Mrs. Bronson was saying something about it the other day."

"All right," said Trimmer, "but I was just about to say that I had tickets for the theater tomorrow night. So don't make any other plans."

Trimmer remarked that he'd had a rather strenuous day when he got home the next evening. After supper he lay down on the lounge.

"We'd better be getting ready if we want to be at the theater on time," suggested Mrs. Trimmer shortly after seven o'clock.

"Huh!" grunted Trimmer with a yawn. "This is the night we were going to the show, isn't it? Well, get your things on and I'll be ready when you are."

Mrs. Trimmer hastened to obey. "Somebody was telling me," remarked Trimmer as they were leaving the house, "that the show isn't much good, after all. I'm not as keen about it as I was." Then they went on and waited for the car.

After dinner, one week later, Trimmer put on his slippers, got into an old lounge coat and leaned back in the big Morris chair with a satisfied expression while he looked over the paper. A few minutes later he went over and got a couple of his pipes, off the center table and started to clean them up.

"This always used to be my favorite smoke—this pipe right here," he confided to Mrs. Trimmer, "but it's got so caked up lately it'll scarce draw at all. Now's a good time to clean it up. Then, after I get it into shape I've got a magazine with a couple of cracking good stories that I want to read to you."

"You'll scarcely have time to do all that, will you?" inquired Mrs. Trimmer smiling. "You know this is the night of the Bronsons' musicale. It's about time that you put on your dress suit. I've got everything laid out for you."

"What's that?" Trimmer looked up, startled. "Musical, you say? Haven't you been a little previous in accepting invitations to such things without consulting me? You know very well how I stand on trotting around in the evening in a dress suit. When I get through work at the office I want to come home and rest. Rest, mind you. That's what I want to do. And it isn't much rest for me to go chasing about with a lot of pinheads that imagine they're deriving enjoyment out of that kind of so-called classical stuff they play at these musicale things."

"Where'd you get the idea that I was willing to be dragged out to such an affair as that, anyway? I'd have to talk to a lot of light weights that don't know enough to carry nuts to a squirrel. I never saw one of those society people who could pass an entrance examination to a night school. 'What?' I said we ought to go out more? Did, eh? Oh, yes, and I suppose I had just such an affair as this musicale in mind, too. That sounds about like me. Yes! Nice spirit on your part to take advantage of a chance remark of mine that I was willing to go out in the evening with you once in awhile—if I did say such a thing."

"Oh, well, I suppose I'm up against it now. We'll have to go to the infernal thing. But it does seem a pity that a man can't have an evening of quiet and rest now and then."

A MESSAGE

Extract from Colonel Roosevelt's Speech delivered immediately after he was shot.

THE CAUSE NOT THE MAN

What Col. Roosevelt Said to His Milwaukee Audience.

NO CONCERN FOR HIS OWN LIFE

In the Greatest Campaign Speech on Record, With a Bullet in His Body, He Answered Forever the Argument That the Progressive Party is a One-Man Movement.

The speech that Col. Roosevelt delivered at Milwaukee with a bullet in his body was the most dramatic campaign utterance on record.

Just before he rose to speak Henry F. Cochems, head of the Progressive Party's Speakers' bureau and a Milwaukee man, came forward and said: "In presenting Col. Roosevelt to you, good citizens, good fathers and good civilians, you should know that the Colonel comes to you in the spirit of a good soldier."

"As we were leaving the hotel a few moments ago a dastardly hand raised a revolver and fired a shot at him, and the Colonel speaks as a soldier with a bullet in his breast; where, we don't know."

A shudder ran through the audience, accompanied by cries of "Oh, Oh," from the women present, who made up half of the audience.

Col. Roosevelt stepped forward and was greeted with a cheer that shook the building. He had the old grin on his face, and it was hard for the audience to credit the statement that he stood there like a soldier with the lead of an enemy in his body.

That there was no question of this was shown by a little incident. When the Colonel started to read his notes he took his spectacle case from the vest pocket, and turning to those just about him, exhibited it, indicating where the bullet of the assassin had nicked it. This brought another sympathetic cheer, to which Mr. Roosevelt responded with one of his smiles and began his talk.

"Friends, I shall ask you to be as quiet as possible," he said. "I don't know whether you fully understand that I have just been shot, but it takes more than that to kill a Bull Moose. (Cheers.) But fortunately I had my manuscript, so you see I was going to make a long speech (holds up manuscript with bullet hole) and there is a bullet—there is where the bullet went through and it probably saved me from it going into my heart. The bullet is in me now, so that I cannot make a very long speech, but I will try my best. (Cheers.)"

"And now, friends, I want to take advantage of this incident and say a word of solemn warning as I know how to my fellow countrymen. First of all I want to say this about myself: I have altogether too important things to think of to feel any concern over my own death, and now I cannot speak to you insincerely within five minutes of being shot."

"I am telling you the literal truth when I say that my concern is for many other things. It is not in the least for my own life. I want you to understand that I am ahead of the game anyway. (Applause and cheers.) No man has had a happier life than I have led; happier life in every way. I have been able to do certain things that I greatly wished to do and I am interested in doing other things."

"I can tell you with absolute truthfulness that I am very much uninterested in whether I am shot or not. It was just as when I was colonel of my regiment. I always felt that a private was to be excused for feeling at times some pang of anxiety about his personal safety, but I cannot understand a man fit to be a Colonel who can pay any heed to his personal safety when he is occupied, as he ought to be occupied, with the absorbing desire to do his duty. (Applause and cheers.)"

"I am in this cause with my whole heart and soul. I believe that the Progressive movement is for making life a little easier for all our people; a movement to try to take the burdens off the men and especially the women and children of this country. I am absorbed in the success of that movement."

"I regard this incident as of infinitesimal importance as compared with the great issues at stake in this campaign, and I ask it not for my sake—not the least in the world, but for the sake of our common country that our opponents make up their mind to speak only the truth, and not to use the kind of slander and mendacity which, if taken seriously, must incite weak and violent natures to crimes of violence."

THE LEADER AND THE CAUSE

Put Into Concrete Form Deep-Rooted Aspirations of Millions of Americans.

A PROOF OF CONSECRATION

Roosevelt Has Made Progressives, but He Did Not Make Progressivism—He Crystallized the Longings of Men but the Party Principles Were Born Long Ago in the Hearts of the Nation.

Roosevelt the ambitious egotist, the would-be Caesar—that monstrous figure of caricature drawn by enmity and malice has been destroyed, never to reappear. But we fancy the other thought—that this is a "one-man movement"—still persists, and it is upon this point that we purpose to speak with somewhat personal emphasis.

With the narrow escape from the tragedy fresh in mind, we say that Colonel Roosevelt was not the creator of the Progressive movement, that he is not the guarantor of its permanency nor his life necessary to its ultimate success.

The Progressive cause and the Progressive party are at this time millions of votes stronger because, responding to the call of duty, he sacrificed ease and braved misinterpretation to become their leader. The establishment of social and industrial justice in this country is, we believe, nearer by a quarter of a century because of the work unselfishly done by this great man.

But he did not create the cause. He has made Progressives, but he did not make Progressivism. He is, it has been said, the "political parent" of Folk and Hadley and Johnson and Wilson and others who have won prominence in the faith. But he did not implant in the breasts of men the aspirations for freedom and justice which the cause embodies.

The principles which now are set forth for the first time by a great political party as a "contract with the people" have long been the growing beliefs of millions of citizens. Roosevelt during his presidency began to interpret them and to put into concrete form and phrase these aspirations and convictions.

Like all effective leaders of historic movements, he crystallized and gave visible substance to the deep-rooted longings of men. He voiced what millions felt. But the cause was born in the heart of this nation, and there lies its strength. Even though that bullet had not been providentially deflected that marvelous fraction of an inch and he had fallen a martyr, the cause would still have gone on, because it is in harmony with the irresistible forces of human growth and evolution.

Had Grant died in the field, would that have meant the permanent disruption of the Union? His loss would have cost battles, but it could not have prevented the ultimate triumph of his cause. So if the Progressive leader had fallen, there would have been profound sorrow for the passing of a loyal friend and leader, but no feeling of hopelessness.

If this seems a cold and calculating view let us say that we believe it is the view Theodore Roosevelt would have his followers take. We believe that had he lost his life the epitaph he would wish to be written of him would be that he had served well, but that as he himself said in the face of death, the cause would go on without him.

This was what moved him to that supreme proof of devotion last Monday night. This has been his spirit since the beginning. He showed it when, confronting the formidable nomination of Governor Wilson, he decided to make the fight. He said he felt like a soldier under orders; if he was summoned even to lead a forlorn hope, he must obey.

And this, we believe, is the view of the great body of Progressives. They look upon Roosevelt as an unequalled figure of brave and sagacious leadership; they are profoundly grateful for the strength that he gives to the movement, and they rejoice that he is spared to head the march to victory. But they know the cause would not have died with him, because it is founded on the eternal principles of justice, because it is the cause of humanity.

Flagged Train With Shirt.

Tearing his shirt from his back an Ohio man flagged a train and saved it from a wreck, but H. T. Alston, Raleigh, N. C., once prevented a wreck with Electric Bitters. "I was in a terrible plight when I began to use them," he writes, "my stomach, head, back and kidneys were all badly affected and my liver was in bad condition, but four bottles of Electric Bitters made me feel like a new man." A trial will convince you of their matchless merit for any stomach, liver or kidney trouble. Price 50 cents at W. H. Windrow's.

Every woman makes a solemn vow never to buy another thing from an agent, and she usually keeps it until the next agent stops at her door.

A Great Building Falls

when its foundation is undermined, and if the foundation of health—good digestion—is attacked, quick collapse follows. On the first signs of indigestion, Dr. King's New Life Pills should be taken to tone the stomach and regulate liver, kidneys and bowels. Pleasant, easy, safe and only 25 cents at W. H. Windrow's.

It might be well for every hopeful graduate to remember that the men behind the hoe or the girl behind the mop can always earn a living.

What a Baptist Preacher Did

This is to certify that I have used one box of Hunt's Cure for a Skin trouble, and same cured me after using about $5.00 worth of other ointments and salves. Nothing like Hunt's Cure for Skin troubles. Rev. H. T. Sizemore, Hemphill, Texas.

Just as long as young women persist in trying to sidetrack housework there will be an oversupply of choros girls.

Calomel is Bad

But Simmon's Liver Purifier is delightfully pleasant and its action is thorough. Constipation yields, biliousness goes. A trial convinces. [In Yellow Tin Boxes Only] Tried once used always.

Some men are like roosters—they crow pretty well, but when it comes to work they let their wives do it.

Tonight.

Tonight, if you feel dull and stupid, or bilious and constipated, take a dose of Chamberlain's Tablets and you will feel all right tomorrow. For Sale by W. H. Windrow.

A college education will not hurt a young man if he is willing to learn something after he graduates.

There are always two sides to a question—the wrong side and our side.
